

Leak Detection

Are you worried that there is a leak somewhere in your pipes or sewer?

Does your water bill seem higher than it should?

Are you noticing signs of water damage or mold around the house?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, then our leak detection services can help.

Locating and repairing a water leak as soon as possible is very important. Water leaks can increase your utility bills, damage your house and lead to mold. If the problems continue for too long, then the overall damage can be significant and the repairmen costs high. Additionally, the mold caused by water damage can also be hazardous to your health.

Inner City Plumbing uses non destructive detection for all types of leaks including sewer, concealed plumbing and hidden water leaks. We use highly advanced technological leak detection devices that enable us to pinpoint the origin of the leak without causing damage to existing property in a timely manner.

Once a leak is located, we can address the underlying plumbing problem. We have been finding and fixing water leaks since 1994 and our team of plumbers are highly experienced at this task.

What Are the Signs of a Concealed Water Leak?

If you have never dealt with a concealed water leak before, then you might not even know what signs to look for. Spotting a water leak can be tricky, but there are usually a few signs that can tip you off, such as:

The water bill has unexpectedly increased. If you did not recently buy a new appliance, such as a washing machine or refrigerator, then your water bill should not suddenly rise.

Water is showing up in unusual places. Often at times there is only a small amount of water, so it is easy to miss if you are not looking carefully.

There are signs of mold and water damage around the house. This could be mold spots on the wall, slight discolouration or softening wood. Sometimes there might even be a slight mildew odor.

You have an irrigation system that is leaking. This might be a little more difficult to spot. Look for small puddles of water in your lawn or garden, as well as softened soil in sporadic locations.
