

Cause for Paws

Dog Trainer

Puppy Classes / Dog Training Sydney

Cause for Paws is driven by merit, passion and the focus of educating pet owners with maximum understanding of their pet, utilising appropriate scientific evidence and positive respect based training methods, achieving highest results, and providing you and your puppy or your adult dog with a good head start and a good healthy relationship for many years to come.

Your Dog is hopefully going to be with you for the next 9-10 and some even 16 years or more.

To start teaching your Dog rights from wrongs early in their lives and in the correct way is worthwhile the small initial investment.

As this will result in gaining your dogs respect, and will reward you with a well behaved, social, acceptable, happy and balanced Dog, and as for your Dog: with a happy, loving and forever home. Get Expert Dog Trainer Sydney

Love and Learn your Pets needs

Must know tips and information to educate yourself with.

When you make your decision to bring a dog or a puppy into your life and your home, you need to make a commitment to them and you need to honour that commitment. They love us unconditionally, and they are entirely dependent on us to meet all their needs.

Can I suggest that when you make this decision, particularly if you are purchasing a puppy, that you obtain your puppy from a reputable and registered breeder. Registered breeders will carefully screen future owners and will often provide valuable information regarding vaccinations and breed-specific requirements, and will only let pups be taken away from their mum and siblings at 8 weeks or later, as removing them earlier will hinder their development, and you may later face behavioural issues and challenges that will be very difficult to correct.

It is also advisable to take time to research different breeds in order to determine which breed is suitable for you, your family and your lifestyle. Some dogs are from working dog lines with high levels of energy and can be extremely active, requiring essential daily exercise and stimulation. Make sure you can take them to the park, and make sure you can provide appropriate levels of stimulation, a range of activities, and socialisation with humans and other dogs from as early an age as possible.

On the other hand, some breeds are calmer with low energy levels. Some eat more and cost more to take care of, some are prone to genetic diseases and while all dogs need to be groomed, some, such as for example Poodles or woolly Malamutes require a constant and quite specific grooming regime. Consider what lies ahead for you and your dog, and then make your decision.

Most instances of pet abandonment result from the careless and thoughtless actions of selfish and uncaring owners who get caught up in the initial emotional rush of having a puppy in their home. Unfortunately they discover later, perhaps when the puppy is a few weeks or months old, that they don't want the responsibility of caring for their dog. and so many dogs, through no fault of their own, find themselves either on the street or in a pound. Some are, depending on their history, pitifully traumatised, fearful or anxious. Some find their 'forever home' while others do not. Please think through your pet purchase carefully so as to avoid this terrible situation.